A few abridged PRESS NOTICES of the FIRST EDITION.

"It would be difficult to exaggerate the usefulness of this work, or to praise too highly the industry of the compiler. The more the guide is examined, the more struck will the reader be at the thoroughness with which Mr. Sonnenschein has done his work. Turn to what subjects we may, we find the best current books which the student may consult, and the prices at which they are published. There are few branches of knowledge, and certainly none of consequence, which are not adequately represented, and so clear is the arrangement that the student will find no difficulty in it."—Spectator.

"An excellent work, executed in a competent manner. . . . The work is admirably done. . . . The more we have looked at it, the better we have liked it."—Athenæum.

"This is the book we have long been looking for, and looking for in vain—a liber librorum, a reader's guide, which shall tell him the price, size, and publisher's name of the best available books in his special department of science, art or literature. Such a general bibliography Mr. Sonnenschein has at last provided."—Journal of Education.

"An arduous and useful labour successfully accomplished : a work the like of which has not, in this country, been attempted. His system of classification and arrangement is excellent. Let us take it that the student wishes to ascertain the best books upon the struggles with Charles I. and his Commons. He turns to the division of 'History' (F) ; a sub-division is 'History of Europe' (iv.). Under F IV. he finds chapter xvi., 'History of England, 1603–1655.' Here are first supplied the 'Sources,' and then follow at length the various works dealing with the epoch. This is a mere outline of the main scheme. How conscientiously it is carried out, and what a mass of concurrent information is provided, can only be ascertained by a reference to the volume, which is a marvel of patient industry and, so far as we have tested it, of exactness."—Notes and Queries.

"The most accurate, scientific, and useful contribution that has ever been made to English bibliography ; . . . exactly what was wanted—a full, thorough, and accurate list of the best works on every subject. It is a permanent addition to English literature."—British Weekly.

"A student who wished to study some particular subject will only have to turn to this volume, and he will find described in it all the books relating to it which have any real value. The plan of classification is the distinctive principle, and constitutes its especial value."—Daily News.

"A very valuable addition to our works of reference, and should find a place in every library of any pretension."—Literary World.

"Deserves nothing but unqualified praise."—Bookseller.

"A welcome contribution to bibliography."—Westminster Review.

"The books have been selected with fine discrimination and care."—Publishers' Circular.

"A work of such tremendous industry, such admirable arrangement, such incalculable usefulness." —Manchester Examiner.

"A book which every Librarian will be glad to have upon his table. . . . A very excellent attempt."—Library Chronicle of the Library Assoc. of U.K.

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION.

I HAVE to thank my critics in the first place, and secondly the public at large, for having rendered it possible for me to bring out a second edition of this book so shortly after the appearance of the first. I, perhaps more than any one, have been conscious of my previous shortcomings, and have availed myself of the last year or two to rectify them as far as I am able. In a work of this kind, undertaken as it should not have been, by a single hand, perfection is not to be compassed, and has, indeed, scarcely been contemplated. The aim of the book is to be useful, not to specialists in their own departments, but to general readers with a "turn for" a little specialization.

This new edition contains twice as many books as the first edition (about 50,000 books as against 25,000), and a large number of new characterizations of books and bibliographical and other notes have been added—to former as well as to fresh entries. I have also recast the classification to some extent, and have elaborated it in many parts—a course attended perhaps with disadvantage to the hasty and casual inquirer; this however is, I think, almost entirely neutralized by the Authors and the Subjects Indexes, which have been prepared at the cost of great labour.

As I said in the first edition of the book, my intention has not been to include any very large number of books in each section, but to record only such as are "best," employing that word in its most catholic sense, not necessarily even as the superlative of "good," but rather as that of "useful." Books of value may be divided into two main categories; those useful historically, and those useful practically; and, as regards the whole mass of books I have included, all I can claim is that none are really worthless in one or the other of these ways. The scope of this work is further limited to books in print and obtainable in the ordinary course of trade, or otherwise readily available, though on occasions, where the subject demanded it, I have included books which are out of print, or even scarce. The very "best" books I have asterisked; but even here "best" is to be taken cautiously. A book may be "best" in one department, or from one point of view, "best" for one class of reader and not for another, "best" as regards one part of it only, though perhaps of no great value as regards the rest. Other books are, as Dr. Johnson said, "good in vain," inasmuch as the reader will not read to the end, or a second time, on account of their dulness and in spite of their goodness. It will not be necessary for me to give instances, especially as I have often indicated in the body of the work any special points of value a book may have—either in square brackets, or in a note.

As far as the CLASSIFICATION is concerned, I have consulted simplicity wherever possible. My starting point has been the opposite of that of the philosophers, with whom, since the days of Aristotle, the "Classification of the Sciences" has been a favourite task. My classification is based on the actual material to be dealt with; i.e., on the subject-matter of the "sciences," in so far as it has been treated by writers. The only previous scheme in any sense practically applicable would have been Comte's, but that is difficult to apply to written knowledge, if all branches thereof are to be included. As it is, I have worked out my own scheme on what I may call a common-sense plan, grouping books firstly into large CLASSES, and breaking them up into sections, subsections and paragraphs—with the result of obtaining all the literature of one subject in one list, and that of outlying subjects close at hand, convenience of reference having been occasionally consulted in preference to strictly scientific or logical order. Deviations from this method, where they occur, will, I hope, be self-explanatory. Cross-references have been frequently necessary in such a plan, and I have not hesitated to insert them freely.

The DATES given are probably not invariably correct, though I think there are few more than a year wrong. In certain catalogues which I have been compelled to use (e.g., The London Catalogue) the dates recorded are those in which the books appeared; these—owing chiefly to the pernicious system of post-dating books—are not necessarily the dates given on the title-pages; and no doubt I have repeated errors in this way, although wherever possible I have verified the figures so obtained by actual reference to the books themselves, or to other entries of them in trustworthy catalogues. I have myself noted a few such errors, as well as others both editorial and typographical, during the progress of the book through the press, but have not troubled to make an Errata Sheet of them, as all important dates are to the best of my belief correct, and it is not likely that this book will be used for strictly bibliographic purposes.

The PRICES are those of the publishers, unless otherwise stated. Discounts are allowed from them in the case of most English publications by nearly all booksellers in the United Kingdom. Few books of travel (and similar books produced for the Circulating Libraries) are worth their original price after they are say three years old. Many are offered at "reduced prices" by the publishers through the booksellers; but as the original prices are maintained in the publishers' own catalogues, and the reductions vary considerably, I have thought it best to adhere to the publishers' prices throughout. Similarly with regard to "remainders," which are frequently offered for only a limited period at low rates.

The VALUES quoted for OUT-OF-PRINT BOOKS represent the prices usually charged by booksellers for fair average copies. These I have derived as far as possible direct from booksellers' catalogues; but where I have failed to trace certain books, I have had resort to auction sale catalogues, adding on a percentage for the booksellers' profit. Great latitude must, however, be allowed in all these cases. With books which are out of print, especially where they are scarce, the value very greatly depends on the "state" of the book—whether good, bad or indifferent, clean or soiled, cut or uncut, well bound or ill bound.

In two departments I have found myself compelled to include FOREIGN BOOKS; viz., in Philology and in Mythology and Folklore. This I think needs no apology, for the English literature on these subjects is admittedly most imperfect, even in important branches: in special branches we have made but little attempt to keep pace with the times, having left the field almost unoccupied to German scholars. Their excellent institution of University and School "Programmes," "Dissertations," etc., renders great service to science, placing at the disposal of students all over the world the results of the most recent scientific research made by thoroughly trained workers. Of these I have sought to give a fairly representative selection in these two departments of learning. The inclusion of foreign books in the Educational section (in Class D) was much less essential; but I had already done the greater part of the work for another publication, and consequently inserted it here also.

I have to thank numerous friends and correspondents in various parts of the world for suggestions and advice, as well as many previous bibliographers and writers of systematic treatises for material, of which I have not hesitated to avail myself wherever desirable. Special acknowledgments would be too lengthy, for I have borrowed from every available source; it would not, indeed, be too much to say that this book could not have been prepared had the bulk of the material not been procurable from previous compilations. My only claim for original work, in reality, is with regard to the classification and the selection. For these I am alone responsible. No doubt the remark that has been made, that "the librarian who reads is lost" is equally applicable to the eclectic bibliographer, however much he may endeavour to sink individual likes and dislikes, or personal bias. I can only hope that I have not erred very egregiously.

It is a pleasure to me to be able to state that the first edition of this book has been fortunate enough to meet with the approval of the American Library Bureau, who have adopted the present edition for their libraries, in which it will at once be placed "as the best general catalogue." This testimony at the hands of a "nation of bibliographers," as the Americans have been called, is peculiarly gratifying to me.

A special word of thanks is due to the printers, Messrs. Butler and Tanner, who have had the book in hand nearly three years, and who have performed a difficult and tedious task with care, courtesy, and, I believe, substantial accuracy.

In conclusion, I should like to add that all criticisms, suggestions as to errors of commission as much as of omission, etc., will be greatly valued by me; and I hope those who use the book will not fail to address me direct when they think they have something useful to suggest.

WM. SWAN SONNENSCHEIN.

LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS.

Dates in the last column of the page are the dates of publication. In cases where more than one edition has appeared, the date of the first edition is put in square brackets, that following being the date of the last edition. All dates omit the two figures representing the nineteenth century, but previous centuries are given in full.

Publishers' Names in round brackets after a non-English Town-name are the names of the London agents for the book in question.

Authors' Titles in square brackets before their initials imply that such titles were acquired after they had written the book named ; e.g., Hampden, [Bp.] R. D. Scholastic Philosophy.

⁂ Many books published in the English provinces may be obtained at Messrs. Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent & Co., Limd. Considerable trouble has been taken to verify the above statements as to firms being defunct ; and it is hoped that no errors have been made in this respect. Early intimations of such (if any) are earnestly requested (13*th March*, 1891).

AUTHORS AND TITLES INDEX.

The numerals refer to the PAGES. Only the first author of a joint-book is as a rule indexed; but where a second author is better know in connection with the book than the first, his name also is indexed.

The Title-entries are limited to Anonymously-published Books the Authors of which are unknown, not commonly known or uncertain; an to Series of Books with a collective name. Quite unimportant anonymous books of which the titles sufficiently indicate their character are no indexed at all, as being more naturally sought under the Subjects Index. Pseudonyms are cross-referenced.

The SCHEME OF ABBREVIATIONS is as follows:—

Complete Ideal Specimen:—Smith, John Essays (two) 750 (three—763, 790); Studies 751 [Art of Writing 780, On Taste 170].

(1) The word within round brackets immediately following the title [(two)] indicates the NUMBER OF BOOKS under titles so abridged which occu on the page immediately following [750];

(2) The first numeral after the title [750] represents the FULLEST or most important ENTRY OF THAT BOOK;

(3) The word within round brackets immediately following a numeral [(three)] indicates the NUMBER OF ENTRIES of the book ON THAT PAGE;

(4) Numerals in round brackets [(763, 790)] represent INCIDENTAL ENTRIES of the entire book. They are occasionally worth turning up, a giving clues to the contents of the book;

(5) Titles and numerals within square brackets [Art of Writing 780] represent PARTS OF BOOKS ENTERED SEPARATELY. They follow imme- diately after the entire bock to which they refer.

English and American Literature.

DARLING, James Cyclopædia Bibliographica 3 vols. [v. i.-ii. authors, v. iii. subjects] o.p. [w. 40/-] 8° Darling 54-59

Its chief value now consists in its references to exegetical, expository, and homiletic literature; it also analyses collections of sermons.

HORNE, Preb. T. H. Introduction [v. A § 16] The useful bibliogr. in this bk. was withdrawn after ninth ed. [1846, o.p.]

*HURST, Dr. J. F. [Am. Meth.] Bibliotheca Theologica: select and classif. bibliography of theology $3 8° New York 83

The most generally useful book, but not so exclusive as, and therefore less suitable for beginners than, CAVE, ut supra.

MALCOLM, Dr. Howard [Am.] Theological Index [acc. to alphabet, under 2,000 heads] $4 8° Philadelphia [68] 70

Contains 70,000 references to theological works; but the headings overlap, and thus occasionally necessitate several references for one subject.

French Literature.

Vols. ii. and iv. (by Ayre and Tregelles respectively) are devoted to Isagogics. A very comprehensive and still valuable, if somewhat antiquated, work. The 10th edition [1856] was entirely re-composed, rendering previous editions obsolete ; and the Amer. reprint, being from one of the early editions, is also almost worthless.
Present Day Tracts on the Higher Criticism 2/6 c 8° R.T.S. 88
Quite popular, giving summaries of the evidence. By Payne-Smith, Howson, Wace, Bruce, and Godet.

Gives Introductions ; divides the text into paragraphs, supplying each para. with an exposition ; to this are added a comprehensive sermon outline and homiletic suggestions. The Introductions are by Archd. Farrar, late Bp. Cotterill, late Prc. Tulloch, Canon Rawlinson, Dr. A. Plummer, and Rev. W. J. E. Deane.

The Expositions by writers named below comprise textual criticism, revised where thought desirable, explanation, apologetics, and archæological references. These and the homiles are by about 100 contributors.

In 1863 the Speaker of the House of Commons consulted with several of the Bishops as to the production of a high-class Commentary, chiefly with a view to defending the Scriptures against "the attacks of modern sceptics," the immediate cause being the pub. of Essays and Reviews [1861] and Colenso's Pentateuch [1862 sqq.], and the result that the Bp. of York organized a plan and committed the editorship into the hands of Canon Cook. [Colenso replied in New Bible Comm. by Bishops, etc., Examined, 25/- 8° Longman 71–75.] The work is not very highly esteemed, its comparative failure being mainly due to its object. Bishop [then Dr.] Harold Browne's portion, "Genesis," is probably the best in the entire series. The whole is strictly evangelical. It contains no express homiletic matter.

The N. T. is far the best from a scholarship point of view. His notes are suggestive and often important, though the good bishop discovers "miracles" where no one else would suspect them, and constantly ventilates his theories of "apostolical succession" and "sacramental grace." His information as to patristic interpretations of O. T. is valuable; and he is throughout deeply reverent.

UDALL, Rev. John Diotrephes: state of the Church of England laid open 1/6 f 8° Arber's Reprts. [1588] 79

A dialogue between a Bishop, a Baptist, a Usurer, an Inn-keeper, and a Preacher. It is the forerunning tract of the controversy. The printer, Rob. Waldegrave, was ruined for the production of it, and thus became available for the printing of the Martinist invectives. Udall, however, was not a Martinist.

94. THEOSOPHY, OCCULTISM, SPIRITUALISM, FREEMASONRY, &c.

[A proper classification of modern Occultist systems seems at present almost impossible. They appear, however, to class themselves somehow thus: (a) The esoteric Buddhism of Mme. BLAVATSKY and Mr. SINNETT, (b) the theosophy of the Perfect Way, by Dr. Anna KINGSFORD and Mr. MAITLAND, (c) spiritualism as commonly understood, (d) the Countess of CAITHNESS' more refined and more intellectual spiritualism, (e) Mr. OLIPHANT'S supernaturalism, which has some affinities with the systems of Dr. KINGSFORD and Lady CAITHNESS, (f) the modern magicians, astrologists and wonder-workers. The following list of books has been made pretty full, as the compiler believes that there is at present a considerable interest taken in the claims of at any rate some of the Occultists.]

Theosophy and Occultism, Modern: General Works.

BARRETT, Francis The Magus, or Celestial Intelligencer: compl. syst. of occult philos.; 23 ill. 30/– 4° Redway [01] 75

A complete system; a résumé of all that preceded it in occult science.

BLAVATSKY, Mme. H. P. [Am.] Isis Unveiled: master key to ancient and modern mysteries 2 vols. $7.50 r 8° New York [ ] 77

SINNETT, A. P. The "Occult World Phenomena" [defence of Mme. Blavatsky] 1/6 8° Redway '86

*KINGSFORD + MAITLAND, Dr. Anna + E. The Perfect Way; or the finding of Christ 12/6 f 4° Field & Tuer [81] 87

A compendium of Esoteric Religion, Christian Theosophy and Mysticism, and Occultism, discussing the Fall, Redemption, Divine Image, Nature and Constitution of Man.

OLCOTT, Col. H. S. Theosophy, Religion and Occult Science, with glossary 7/6 c 8° Redway 85

A collection of lectures, delivered in India, by the president of the Theosophical Society.

OLIPHANT, Laurence Scientific Religion: higher possibilities thro' operation of natural forces 16/– 8° Blackwood [88] 88

Propounds a new system of "spiritual materialism," asserting that physical, mental, and emotional forces are all material, that their manifestations are conditioned by the varieties of which they consist, and of endless combinations and "fermentations" which may be produced by these atoms. There are thus "joy-atoms" and "pain-atoms": will is an aggregation, love a perturbation, and worship a current of atoms. Immortality depends on strength rather than on virtue or vice, and as the latter "weighs more," the wicked sink into nonentity, whilst the good rise continuously. A curious book, not without much suggestion, and written by a most capable littérateur—first two parts are said to have been written under inspiration of late Mrs. OLIPHANT, an inhabitant of the spirit-world.

PEMBER, G. H. Earth's Earliest Ages: and their conn. with spiritualism & theosophy 7/6 c 8° Hodder [76] 89

A lucid exposition of theosophic doctrine, from Christian standpoint; the only modern treatise (it is believed) from this point of view.

96. UNIVERSALISM.

[Believers in the ultimate salvation of all mankind, good and bad alike. The sect was founded by Jas. KELLY, a Unitarian minister, in middle of 18th century. The American sect originated with John MURRAY, an English Wesleyan, who emigrated in 1770; and here the Universalists have established themselves prosperously as an independent body, numbering in 1862 1,000 congregations.]
